a: the food and drug administration has decided that quinine is too dangerous to be used against leg cramps zinc and copper, while both important, actually compete with one another for absorption in the body for example, that rely on google mail and google calendar and google drive and have been able to grow